Bullying Definitions

Bullying

Repeated unreasonable behaviour directed towards a person that creates a risk to health and safety. It occurs when an individual or a group deliberately upsets or hurts another person, their property, reputation, or social acceptance on more than one occasion.

Forms of bullying include:

Cyber-bullying	The use of various forms of ICT systems to spread text and visual messages that threaten, intimidate, harass or humiliate a person or group of people.
Extortion bullying	Physically stronger and more powerful students may bully other students into giving up their possessions, buying food and drink, or taking part in rule breaking activities.
Gesture bullying	Non-verbal signals used to silence and intimidate a victim.
Physical bullying	Pushing, shoving, fighting, pinching and any other unwelcome physical contact used intentionally to intimidate or hurt someone.
Sexual bullying	Touching, sexually orientated jokes, drawings of, or writing about someone's body, using rude names or commenting about someone's morals, unwanted invitations of a sexual nature, asking questions about someone's private life.
Social Bullying	Also called Relational, Emotional or Exclusion bullying, examples include deliberately excluding someone, spreading rumours, sharing information that will have a harmful effect on the other person and/or damaging a person's social reputation or social acceptance.
Verbal bullying	Put downs, particularly those referring to physical characteristics, can result in loss of self-esteem. Racial discrimination of any kind is a form of bullying.
Visual bullying	Offensive notes or material, graffiti, or damaging other people's possessions.

Categories of Bullying

There are three broad categories of bullying

Direct physical bullying	This form includes hitting, tripping, and pushing or damaging property.
Direct verbal bullying	This form includes name calling, insults, homophobic or racist remarks, or verbal abuse.
Indirect bullying	This form of bullying is harder to recognise and often carried out behind the bullied person's back. It is designed to harm someone's social reputation and/or cause humiliation. Indirect bullying includes: <ul style="list-style-type: none">– lying and spreading rumours– playing nasty jokes to embarrass and humiliate– mimicking– encouraging others to socially exclude someone– damaging someone's social reputation and social acceptance– cyber-bullying, which involves the use of email, text messages or chat rooms to humiliate and distress someone.

What Bullying is not

Many distressing behaviours are not examples of bullying, even though they are unpleasant and often require teacher intervention and management. There are three socially unpleasant situations that are often confused with bullying including:

Mutual conflict	In mutual conflict situations, there is an argument or disagreement between students but not an imbalance of power. Both parties are upset and usually both want a resolution to the problem. However, unresolved mutual conflict sometimes develops into a bullying situation, with one person becoming targeted repeatedly for 'retaliation' in a one-sided way.
Single-episode acts	Single episodes of nastiness or physical aggression are not the same as bullying. If a student is verbally abused or pushed on one occasion they are not being bullied. Nastiness or physical aggression that is directed towards many different students is not the same as bullying.
Social rejection or dislike	Unless the social rejection is directed towards someone specifically and involves deliberate and repeated attempts to cause distress, exclude or create dislike by others, it is not bullying.
